

BADGER HOLSTEINS ON TEXAS RANGES

Monroe, Wis., Oct. 25.—The famous long-horned cow of Texas are giving way to the Holstein milk cows and the hard-riding cowboy of a few years ago is to be replaced by a dairy man. Bankers of the various Texas cities are bringing about the metamorphosis. Four carloads of grade Holsteins have just been shipped from Green county, and six more carloads will follow within a few days, as a result of a tour of investigation which has just been completed by C. O. Moser of Dallas, W. K. Dixon and B. R. Davis of Lubbock, and E. L. Moore of Amarillo, Texas. Under the co-operative plan which is being worked out by the Texas State Bankers' association, the Texas cattle will be sold to farmers who desire to engage in the dairying industry, three years being allowed in which to pay for the same, and the farmers will themselves pay at the rate of one-half of the receipts of the producer from the cows each month, it being figured that in this manner the payment will be made within a term of three years. There are about fifteen communities in Texas, where this co-operative plan is being carried out, and it is spreading rapidly.

MISSING GIRL BACK AT HOME IN MONROE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Monroe, Oct. 25.—Miss Allie Sherman, a young girl of about twenty-eight years, who was missing for nearly a month, returned to Monroe yesterday afternoon, after her eighteenth time at running away. Poor Allie is unusually unfortunate—she has had eight husbands and again she hasn't. Local authorities are uncertain what to do with her now. She just came back from Janesville yesterday, where she went to see the world's fair and a student of one of the schools. She was picked up by Sheriff Solbraa. Allie is of a very morose nature. For days at a time she will go about never speaking to a soul—and then all of a sudden she will turn up missing. She has visited nearly all of the larger towns near Monroe, but is always brought back. She has been seen at Madison, and once to Waukesha, but poor Allie is certainly not enough "on her head" to be kept at such an institution, and yet that is what they are doing. She says she doesn't care for the boys, and has never been kissed by one in her life, so her motive in running away cannot be "the boys."

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Oct. 25.—Miss Rachel Seizer of Magnolia is spending a few days at the home of Elsie Troon. A company of workmen are distributing several loads of cinders on the roadbed of the local siding, and also improving the stockyards with a liberal supply of the same. Nels Parlin of northern Wisconsin is spending a few days with friends here. This is Mr. Parlin's first visit to the town for upwards of twenty years. Mrs. H. H. Medgordch, who has been spending the past few months with relatives in Minnesota, returned home on Wednesday morning. She was accompanied by her daughter Olive, from the state of Washington, who will spend some time with relatives here. Mrs. Rose Forbush is spending a few weeks with friends in Beloit. She is a guest at the home of Dr. J. W. Kiehl. Farmers are busy harvesting their crop of late potatoes, and while the crop is far from an average, yet many will have more than they can dispose of. The piece of highway east of the village, on the Hanover road, that has been partially impassable on account of the extensive repairs being made on it, is now completed and travelers pronounce it an A No. 1 job.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question: "If one is getting high testing milk on a ration of corn-stalks and timothy hay, why should one feed grain?"—B. U.

Answer: In order to get more milk. If a little of a good thing is good, more of it is certainly better.

The richness of the milk does not depend on a great extent on the kind of feed. It is in the cow, and the less milk she gives the richer it is likely to be. If you have good cows you should not feed anything but corn-stalks, timothy hay and corn-stalks, or corn stover. Such a ration is not right even for the maintenance of the cow, to say nothing of producing milk. Clover or alfalfa are much to be preferred to timothy hay, on account of the protein, which is a necessary constituent of the feed. It is to produce milk, not to produce paying quantities. Protein may also be secured from bran and other concentrates. The best plan is to feed some bran and some alfalfa or clover, though it does very well on alfalfa and corn silage without grain.

For winter cows should have some succulent feed. It is impossible to keep up a good flow of milk without silage is the best for this, but if one has no silo stock beets should be fed. If one has neither he should plan to have them another season. In the meantime he should buy bran and combine it with some other grains. The following would make a good ration: Bran, forty pounds; ground oats, thirty pounds; gluten feed, thirty pounds; or he might use bran, thirty pounds; corn cob meal, thirty pounds; wheat middlings, thirty pounds; oil meal, ten pounds. This should be fed at the rate of about one pound of the mixture to three or four pounds of milk.

Unfortunately the prices of feed are high this season, but fortunately the price of butter fat is high also. Good feed will pay if you have good cows and a judicious expenditure for grain will bring a profit, and in the spring you will have something for your winter's work. Unless you do this you are likely to have your winter's work for the fun of doing it. The value of the butter fat from the increase in butter fat the purchase of feeds is of value in bringing increased fertility to the farm. This is an important item that is usually taken into consideration, but which deserves more attention. All the feeds recommended are rich in the elements needed for plant growth. The value of manure from animals fed from these crains for each ton bought is as follows: Wheat bran, $10.19; oat feed, $5.20; cotton seed meal, $19.20; wheat middlings, $5.77. Deducting this from the price of the grain when bought, the net result is not such a large sum.

Question: When should celery be dug and how should it be stored?—H. E. W.

Answer: Celery should be dug before the ground freezes as it is injured by freezing. If the celery is between boards for drying they will, of course, protect it from quite severe frosts. It is hardly safe to leave it after this time unless it is well banked with leaves or straw to protect it from freezing. The plants should be lifted with a spade and the dirt shaken from the roots and the old outside leaves picked off before storing. It should be stored in a cool, frost-proof cellar where it will be kept moist. Boxes twelve to eighteen inches high with several inches of moist sand in the bottom should be used for the purpose. In these boxes it should be packed in an upright position, the sand being worked in around the roots. If it does not winter quite well the boxes may be taken where it is warmer when they may be watered to start the growth of the tender shoots.

Question: When should grape vines be laid down for the winter?—B. W. A.

Answer: Grapes may be laid down any time before the ground freezes. The vines should be pruned and then laid down and covered with two to four inches of earth. Principles governing the pruning of grapes appeared in this column Nov. 6, 1915, but for the sake of new readers is repeated here.

(1) The old wood which has borne fruit once never bears again. (2) The wood that is formed one season produces the bearing wood for the next season. (3) If all the new wood is left on the vine it will bear ten times more clusters than if it is properly developed, and they will be small and imperfect. (4) If nine-tenths of the new wood is cut away, leaving only from thirty to fifty good buds to each vine, the yield of good grapes will be much increased.

Question: What sort of a Babcock milk tester would you recommend for use on the farm?—J. M.

Answer: A six bottle hand-tester increased in iron is a good one. Such a tester is less liable to breakage and in cold weather is more easily kept warm.

JAPAN CLOSING BANK OF GERMANS AT YOKOHAMA

Yokohama, Oct. 25.—The Yokohama branch of the Deutsch-Asiatische bank has been closed by order of the Japanese government and all its business suspended. The shutting up of the only German bank in Japan will seriously affect German prisoners of war whose deposits are stored in the largest part of the business. It is estimated that deposits of about 4,000 German prisoners are locked up until the official ban on the institution is removed, which will probably not be until the closing of the war. The total deposits by Germans are estimated to be 3,000,000 yen or about $500,000.

Japanese papers which led a campaign last spring for more vigorous measures against German residents and German institutions in Japan express satisfaction over the closing of the bank.

How to Judge a Woman by Her Hair

There are always the well-known and semi-humorous methods, such as saying brunettes are quick-tempered, but there is real common sense in the notion whether the hair is well kept to judge a woman's nature. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made expressly for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some cantharox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water when your shampoo is all ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth. Advertisement.

Milton Couple Wedded Fifty Years

MR. AND MRS. HENRY R. OSBORN.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Milton, Oct. 26.—Over a hundred guests were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Osborn Monday afternoon and evening to help them celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day, and a jolly good time was enjoyed by all present. The house was prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and other golden decorations. It was found out that it was also the thirty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Emory C. Cary and they were invited to celebrate the occasion with the Osborns. Mr. Cary, a nephew of Mr. Osborn, among those present from a distance were: Eugene L. Cary of Long Beach, California; Mrs. Minnie Morton of Tampa, Florida; Mrs. Eliza D. Drew of Watlington, Mass.; Mrs. L. Hatch of Algon, Iowa; Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Rice, Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Rice, Leander Loomer, wife and daughter, Cory of Delavan; Miss Lizzie Gillies of Evansville, Miss Edith Wheeler and Harlan Burgett of Whitewater; Albert Persels and granddaughter, Arlene Persels of Farina, Ill.; Rev. A. L. McClelland of Walworth; Mrs. C. C. Carr of Janesville; Mrs. O. A. Roe of Lima Center; Dexter Gray, wife and daughter, Lella of North Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rice, son, Roland, and daughter, Irma, of Harmony; Mrs. Mary Osborn and Roy L. Cary of Milton Junction. Two of the relatives, Mrs. C. C. Carr and F. O. Wheeler, were present at the wedding fifty years ago. There was only one thing to mar the great pleasure of the occasion and that was the absence of their son, Glen and family of Long Beach, California. Despite the fact that the announcement had been made that presents were barred, several beautiful gifts were received, some from the son's family. Dainty refreshments were served by the young ladies of the neighborhood. Before the guests departed several songs were sung, Mr. and Mrs. Osborn singing one of the songs of long ago, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Mrs. Osborn invited the company to be present at their diamond anniversary. The guests departed, wishing them many more years of wedded life.

BRAZIL TOWN BUILDS MUNICIPAL SLAUGHTERHOUSE

Washington, Oct. 26.—Pernambuco, Brazil, has built a municipal slaughterhouse, said to be one of the largest and finest in South America, and intends to lease it for a term of years to the highest bidder. Tenders will be opened Dec. 15 and the department of commerce is calling attention of Americans to the opportunity of leasing and operating the abattoir.

HOTELS, WAR BUREAUS; ACCOMMODATIONS LACKING ALL OVER LONDON NOW

London, Oct. 26.—Hotel accommodations in London are becoming a serious problem. The government has taken over a number of well known hotels for various war bureaus, and two of the largest clubs in the city recently were commandeered. The result of this demand for room has been a marked rise in prices. One of the better hotels, patronized largely by Americans and Canadians, has just announced an increase of 40 per cent in the price of all rooms. Cafe prices are following the upward trend, and the greatest complaint heard is that the size of the portions decreases as rapidly as the price moves upward.

Dandruff is a Dangerous Disease

Dandruff should never be neglected for it indicates an unhealthy condition of the scalp that often leads to baldness. Some vital element in the follicles is lacking and the scalp flakes off. VOLA-VITA makes the scalp clean, healthy, makes hair grow on bald heads, restores color to gray hair by giving it the element missing. Vola-Vita is sold and guaranteed by all good druggists and the Vola-Vita Mfg. Co., Chicago, 716 N. La Salle.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

Charles Chaplin is going to tell the truth about comedy studios. What is more alarming, he is going to tell it on the screen. What Mr. Chaplin has to say about comedy building ought to be an interesting story—particularly as he proposes to relate it in eloquent, flowing, and the highest kind of action. Mr. Chaplin is now at work upon this master-comedy within a comedy at the studios in Los Angeles. Ordinarily the next Chaplin comedy would be liberated to the waiting cinema world November 1. Mr. Chaplin, however, has refused to hear anything of it. He asked, also, to deliver his brain child, "Behind the Screen." Now it is scheduled to be forthcoming on November 13.

MOVIES NOT DRAMA, SAYS MISS YOUNG

According to Clara Kimball Young, the great fault with most producers of motion pictures lies in their conception of what the so-called photo-drama really is at its best. "The motion picture is not a play or drama, but a narrative," said Miss Young in a recent interview. "It is all the difference in the world between the two forms of expression. Many magnificent novels would fall hopelessly as staged dramas and yet make fine motion pictures. On the other hand, the highest form of drama loses half its force when novelized and can't be successfully produced as a motion picture at all. Who can imagine successful presentations of Ibsen on the screen."

"The solution is a simple one. Story telling is a different art to that of the dramatist. Of course a story may be potentially dramatic, but is the wide range of incident and character drawing that makes a big story, whereas a drama is built almost entirely for situations and climatic effect."

In the production which Fannie Ward is now doing it is necessary that she be frightened by a wolf. A thoroughbred animal was procured, but unfortunately it had been raised a household pet by a mother of some little girls and promptly tried to make friends with Miss Ward. Director Fletcher was to make the animal snarl at Miss Ward instead of licking her hand. This feat was finally accomplished by tying a long cord

Edgerton News

EDGERTON HIGH TRIMS MILTON COLLEGE 47-0

(Special to the Gazette.)

Edgerton, Oct. 26.—Edgerton again added another victory to their list yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Milton college team by a score of 47 to 0. The visitors outweighed the locals by about 15 pounds per man, but the fast shifts and spectacular forward passes by Edgerton won the game for them. The wind was blowing a gale, which made kicking uncertain. The first score of the game was made when Williams made an end run for twenty-five yards for a goal. Williams also made the second touchdown. A place kick for goal resulted in Roscoe kicking goal. Quarterback Curran then made a sensational run through the line, two-five yards for a touchdown. In the third quarter Ogden made two touchdowns and Curran scored one. The last quarter the visitors held their opponents on their five yard line for downs, but afterward lost the ball, and Curran scored the last touchdown of the game on a forward pass. Roscoe succeeded in kicking five goals out of seven. It was very good, considering the wind. Milwaukee normal school defeated the Milton college team last Friday by a score of 27 to 0. Milwaukee normal defeated Northwestern and Northwestern tied Beloit college, so averaging the scores and standings of the different colleges in this section, the Edgerton high school ranks conceded the champion of northern Wisconsin and the local team have received an offer of $150 to come to La Crosse on Thanksgiving day and meet that team.

W. F. Wolfe, candidate for United States senator, spoke in the city yesterday. The Edgerton band greeted him at the depot and escorted him to the Lyric theatre, where he addressed a fair-sized audience. The train which brought the candidate to the city was late arriving at noon, which caused quite a number of people, who would like to have heard the speaker, miss his speech.

A new front with a side entrance is being put in the Smith Furniture store.

The Normal football team goes to Milwaukee Friday to play the Normal team of that city in the afternoon. This will be the local hardest game. The Milwaukee team was always a strong contender for the championship. It is the first conference game for the local team and they have been given some stiff practice the past week. It is expected to be a great game although the comparable scores of the two teams favors Milwaukee, especially in the games with Northwestern. Milwaukee beat them 10 to 0 while the best the locals could do was a 7 to 7 tie.

Evansville News

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years of age and I am engaged to a young man who works in another state. His business only allows him to come about once in six weeks. When he is here I think I love him, but after he has been away two weeks I am not sure.

(1) If I really loved him would I ever doubt it?

(2) There is a young man in my town whom I feel sure I love. I have had many nice times with him, but I do not know whether or not I love him.

(3) Will I be happy when I am away from him and married to the one to whom I am engaged?

(4) Is twenty-one too young to be married?

(5) How can one be absolutely sure she loves a person?

(6) I am going away. Would it be wrong to ask this fellow to write?

(7) Is it wrong for me to go out occasionally with other fellows, as my friend is away?

(8) How can I forget this fellow whom I love? MERT BEAUCOUP.

(1) I believe that it is possible to be very much in love and still doubt it at times. The feeling of doubt, however, should not be a habitual state or occur very often.

(2) You are foolish to be engaged to one man and in love with another. Love means where it will, and so you probably cannot help loving the other man. Perhaps at heart you long to be free from the man you are engaged to marry, and this desire makes you seek someone else to love.

(3) You will never love him. You marry a man you do not love. Be honest to yourself and the man. Tell him of your doubt and insist upon breaking the engagement.

(4) No.

(5) A person knows instinctively. I wouldn't if I were you.

(6) That is a matter he should decide. A girl should not go with other boys if the man she is going to marry objects.

(8) Don't try. Break your engagement instead.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a switch which has been colored black by sulphur. Is there any way in which it can be made a lighter shade? THANK YOU.

Take it to a hair shop or the place you bought it and have it made lighter.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am thirty-nine years old and I have been married nineteen years. I have four children. My husband is very jealous of me and throws up awful things at me that I am not guilty of. I love no one else I never go any place except with him. I stay at home and tend to my own business and household duties and yet he accuses me of things that I am guilty of. Please tell me what to do. I will follow your advice.

HEBENPECKED WIFE.
I think it will be best to explain away your husband's fears. Tell him what you have told me. Say that you love him and that it is unfair for him to continually accuse you of things that his reason must tell him are untrue.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am seventeen years old and I am going with a young man who loves me very much and I love him. He is not making enough money to get engaged and so he has not asked me to marry him. When he asked me to kiss him I would not, and he said he would kiss me all the better if I did. He asked me to for so long that finally I did kiss him. He likes me just as well and I haven't lost his respect. I don't agree with you when you say that boys lose their respect for girls after they have let them kiss them.

BILLY.
Everyone has a right to her own opinion. Of course I hope you will never have to suffer because you have let a boy kiss you and then lost his respect. Most girls who follow your course do suffer terribly before they have pursued it very far.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

1. What is the cause of congenital dislocation of the hip? 2. How can it be cured? 3. If plaster cast is applied, what is the position of the limb, and how long must it be worn? 4. Is this condition classed as a deformity? (Mrs. M. W. S.)

Answer—1. Failure of complete development of the cup-like depression in which the head of the thigh bone rests. 2. By bloodless traction and consecutive plaster casts to retain and develop a sufficient socket for the head of the bone. 3. The position is at first widely abducted, drawn outward at an angle with the body, and gradually straightened with succeeding casts. Casts are worn for many months. 4. Yes.

Household Hints

PHILADELPHIA BROIL.
Drain the oysters, heat the liquor over the fire. Boil and skim it. For every twenty oysters allow one tablespoonful of butter, put in a sauce pan and brown. Add a tablespoonful of browned flour, then add one-half pint of the oyster liquid. Stir the mixture until boiling, add salt to taste and a teaspoonful of paprika, turn all this into a double boiler and add a teaspoonful of seasoning. Heat an ordinary pancake griddle very hot and brush it lightly with butter. Lay on a few oysters at a time, as soon as they are brown and curl, put them in the oyster sauce in double boiler and continue so until all the oysters are broiled. The griddle must be very hot or the juice of the oysters will prevent browning.

OYSTERS IN BLANKET.
Drain off as many oysters as you need, salt and pepper them. Have thinly sliced bacon large enough to cover an oyster, and fasten the pieces of bacon with toothpicks. When they are all ready, fry in a small amount of butter. Garnish the dish with lemon and parsley. Season with a chili sauce.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Subs for Potatoes—Use hominy if it is only 10 cents a can. To make potatoes go farther, cook them with carrots, half of each. To keep powdered sugar from hardening, add only 25 cents' worth at a time, put in a paraffin-lined oatmeal carton, put two thicknesses of paraffin paper on the top and press the lid down.

Potomac poison will often develop in a chicken pie, unless a hole is made in the top crust. If chicken is soaked in a kettle and set aside to cool, it should remain uncovered until cool. For the same reason, that "peculiar taste" in chicken cooked in a steam cooker will disappear if the chicken is cooked uncovered for a short time at the beginning.

THE TABLE.
Tomato Soup Without Meat—One large can or two fresh tomatoes, one quart boiling water, one onion cut into small pieces, one small carrot cut into small pieces, one-eighth teaspoon celery salt, one-half cup butter, one-half cup milk, one-half cup cream, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup salt. Boil one hour. Then season with one even tablespoon each of salt, sugar, and cream, and one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, one tablespoon butter, pinch of baking soda, two tablespoons flour. Mix all together, then add to hot soup. Boil five minutes. Strain through sieve and serve with crackers. This soup is quickly and easily made. It is no trouble to prepare and is an excellent meal for the school children at the noon hour.

Mock Veal Roast—One-half pint shellfish, one-half pint lentils, two (small) tablespoons melted butter, one-half pint tomato sauce, one-half cup milk, one-half cup cream, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup salt. Soak lentils over night; drain, bring them to a boil (keep water for soup if you wish), cover with fresh water and boil until tender. Drain again, press through colander, add nuts (chopped or ground), melted butter, bread crumbs and seasoning, with sufficient milk to make it of consistency of mush. Pour into baking dish and bake in moderate oven one hour. Beans or peas may be substituted for lentils.

Stuffed Cal's Heart—Wash the heart and stuff with forcemeat; sew. Arrange a cupful of onion and carrots in bottom of casserole. Place heart on top of vegetables, sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Dredge with flour and bake in hot oven two and one-half hours. Baste often with hot drippings. Remove from oven and make a brown gravy. Serve gravy around heart.

Current Potato Scones—Two cups mashed potatoes, two cups flour, one cup butter, one cup sugar, one cup milk, one cup cream, one cup salt. Mix all together, then add to hot soup. Boil five minutes. Strain through sieve and serve with crackers. This soup is quickly and easily made. It is no trouble to prepare and is an excellent meal for the school children at the noon hour.

COLD COMFORT.

A letter friend has a point of view to present. "While on the whole this plea for cheerfulness and the making the best of things, is a healthy symptom," she writes, "don't you think it can be overdone? In some cases it seems to me it leads to selfishness. Do you not think that some people, for instance, make a sort of shibboleth of 'Don't worry' and just use it to stave off a conversation which they think would bore them?"

"In fact, I often say that some people when they say 'Don't worry' really mean 'Don't worry that I am not going to have something to bear.'"

"I do believe in helping people to be brave and cheerful, and happy if possible, but I want first of all to be sympathetic, and I think in many instances one can accomplish more by admitting that the complainer has some grounds, than by looking on the bright side.

"For instance, is it not more likely to accomplish what is desired, we say, 'Yes, it is a hard task, but you are equal to it, or 'God will help you, than if we just say, 'That is easy, or 'You ought to see what some people have to do.'"

Don't Take Too Much About Other People's Blessings.
"One of my strictest rules is never to tell a person she ought to be thankful unless she has more than I have. How exasperating it would be, for instance, when a person is bedridden to be told by someone in perfect health that she ought to be thankful she can use her hands! Don't you think anyway that there is a certain perverseness in human nature which makes after that we are told that when we are told that we are very fortunate, we at once begin to think of our drawbacks? So, really, if we want to help anyone to appreciate his blessings, it is unwise to say too much about them."

Sometimes These Vicariously Cheerful People Are The Least Resigned.
Can you understand that point of view? I emphatically can. There is something almost uncanny in the cheerfulness and fortitude some people can show about other people's troubles.

When their own troubles come, these are often the people who are the least resigned. I have in mind a woman who in her own days of prosperity told a poor widow, who had to fill in for other people's homes for a living, that she ought to be thankful that she helped out so many people in tight places.

When that woman lost her prosperity and had to do similar work, I never saw anyone so unresigned.

COOKS WITHOUT EGGS OR BUTTER—One cup sour cream, one level teaspoon soda, pinch of salt, one cup sugar, flouring, flour enough to roll. Economical Sponge Cake—Two eggs, one cup sugar, one-half cup hot water, one cup flour, one-half cup one-half lemon, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, pinch of salt. Beat the yolks of the eggs with the sugar, then add the hot water, the remaining sugar, lemon rind and the flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Lastly fold in the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth and bake twenty-five minutes in a well buttered and floured pan.

Fried Summer Squash With Bacon—The squash must be tender when the seeds are scarcely formed. Cut in half-inch slices, dip in beaten egg and seasoned cracker crumbs, and fry in the same pan in which the bacon has been cooked. Cover and cook slowly about fifteen minutes or until well browned. This is an appetizing breakfast dish and resembles fried egg plant. Serve on platter bordered with crisp bacon.

Training a Husband

Morris Finds a Happy Home and Makes a Resolution.

Morris had been driving for over an hour through the cold, windy autumn night and it was with a feeling of intense satisfaction that he climbed out of the car and walked toward the cheerfully lighted house.

"Come in. This is Mr. Southy. I am looking for you for some time." The speaker was a kindly man of about Morris' age.

"I hope I have not inconvenienced my hostess by my late arrival. They refused to send me out from town in an automobile as there had been heavy rains, and I concluded they were wiser when I saw the condition of the roads."

Morris glanced at his mud-spattered garments.

"This black soil certainly does make first class mud, but when we get our pavement laid next year the rains will not affect us. Come right in to the fire, the host added, having relieved his guest of his coat. "You must be cold."

"Isn't exactly summer weather," laughed Morris, rubbing his hands.

"Well, Betty, Mr. Southy has arrived in time to save the dinner from destruction. Mr. Thornton presented his wife.

"I will go and look after that same dinner if I may be excused," answered the smiling hostess.

As they sat around the cheerful fire and talked about the prospect of an audience at the school house that evening, and the interest in the subject Morris was to discuss at a little later time, the next room and a little fellow came running to Mr. Thornton crying bitterly. The father gathered up the sobbing bit of humanity and excusing himself left the room. Morris found himself wondering that the child should come to his father for comfort when the mother was in the house. He could not remember having such a thing happen in his own family. He felt hot when he remembered the mother's angry words, and ever got from him was an attempt to stop his noise.

"Marian said she so wanted me to gain my children's confidence. This child has never lost the confidence of his boy," he thought with growing discomfort.

"Here's a little man that is going to take the knocks of the world and never stay frowny for long," said the host returning with the boy in his arms. "He never makes much fuss over bumps." He patted the plump little back. Morris had always maintained that sympathy made children cry-babies.

When Mrs. Thornton came in to announce dinner she inquired about the accident.

"I heard the scream, but I knew that if you could have Daddy everything would be all right," Her eyes rested lovingly on her husband.

When the lecture was over and he had been shown to his room, Morris was unable to sleep. The wind had blown the moonlight away and his glorious moonlight flooded his room. What was it, he wondered, that made the atmosphere of this simple country home so restful, so different from other places where he had been entertained during this long trip. The most casual glances of this couple were full of complete understanding, he mused.

"I can't imagine that man making irritated speeches," he mused, "or snapping at his boy. How Marian should blossom out in an atmosphere like this. Long he tossed on the comfortable bed, and it was not until he had resolved to take a real man's part in the world and make his family happy instead of being a burden, that he finally fell asleep toward morning. (To be continued.)

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LIVER COMPLAINT.

In spite of our ceaseless assault upon the well-being of the butcher, we still receive a good many letters like this:

"My tongue is coated most of the time. I have a bad breath. I feel lousy and growly after dinner. I belch considerable gas, have dull, mean headaches, lack ambition and pep. My eyes are all right, the oculist tells me. My kidneys are normal, the urologist's examination asserts. I look a little yellow at times. I am rather constipated. I am pessimistic, or morose. I fear I am this thing you would call liver complaint? What should I do for it? My appetite is fine, in fact, I am a hearty eater. I always sleep well.

A beautiful description of meat-poisoning, from the most wholesome bits of meat the market affords, no doubt. Liver complaint? Well, the liver has a right to complain, and so has the rest of the body. Call it liver complaint, if you like. That doesn't mean anything, anyway—just a scheme to create a demand for liver pills. Meat-poisoning, auto-intoxication, biliousness, over-eating—never mind the name for it. You want a remedy.

The good old doctors used to give liver pills. That is, they prescribed a cathartic, and just arbitrarily assumed that cathartic was the remedy for some particular influence upon the liver. Of course no cathartic really does so. But never mind that either. What you want is a remedy. You don't care how it works.

There are two good ways to treat a case of poisoning, no matter what the poison may be: (1) Eliminating the poison from the body by what we call a cathartic, and (2) keeping the poison out of the body. The first method is rather unsatisfactory, because, while a good cathartic is an excellent medicine for such a case, still the body is injured by the poison before you can eliminate it. However, it was good enough for our ancestors. They weren't so particular as we are now. Time was less valuable in their day. Efficiency didn't count.

The second method is lots more satisfactory. Keep the poison out. Eat less meat. It is a habit, meat-eating, comparable with tobacco and indulgence. Meat is stimulating—we prescribe beef broth to stimulate a patient, not to feed him, for we know from experience that starvation occurs sooner in an animal fed beef broth than in one fed nothing at all, the stimulation of the meat extractives hastening exhaustion by using up reserve energy. The craving for meat is therefore not a natural craving when it demands satisfaction every day or several times a day. It is just a bad habit that hastens senility and decay. Meat three times a week is ample for an ordinary working person. Meat every day is altogether too much for a sedentary person. Cut down your meat

The Idyl of Twin Fires

By WALTER PRICHARD EATON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"As we came to the first crossing, I pointed to the pool, already dark with shadow, and said, 'It was wrong of me to play Aetion to your Diana. You were very charming in the dappled light, and you were doing a natural thing, and in among these little pines, perhaps, two friends may be two friends, though they are man and woman.'"

She did not reply at once, but stood beside me looking at the dark pool and apparently listening to the whisper of the running water against the stepping-stones. Finally she said with a little laugh, "I have always thought that perhaps Diana was unduly severe. Come, we must be moving on."

Once more we entered the pines, following the new path over the brook again to the spot where we first had met. There I touched her hand. "Let us wait for the thrush here," I whispered.

I could see her glimmering face lifted to mine. "Why here?" she asked. "Because it was here we first heard him."

"Oh, forgive me," she answered. "I didn't realize! The path has made it look different, I guess. Forgive me."

She spoke very low, and her voice was so soft. Did it mean so much to her? A sudden pang went through my heart—and then a sudden hot wave of joy—and then sudden doubts. I was silent. So was the thrush. Presently I touched her hand again, gently.

"Come," said I, "we have scared him with our chopping. He will come back, though, and then we will walk down the clean path, making no noise, and hear him sing."

"Nice path," she said, "to come out of your door, through your orchard, and wander up a path by a brook, through your own pines! Oh, fortunate mortal!"

"And find Diana wading in a pool," I added.

Again she shot an odd, questioning look at me, and shook her head. Then she ran into the south room and put the books back on the shelves.

"Which one did you read, Marius or Allen?" I asked.

"Neither," she smiled, as I looked the house behind us.

CHAPTER X.

Advent of the Pilligs.

The next day it was raining. I set off alone to make ready for the arrival of the Pilligs. I was standing on my kitchen porch talking to Mike when they arrived. It was a memorable moment. I heard the sound of wheels, and looked up. A wagon was approaching, driven by an old man. Beside him, beneath a cotton umbrella, sat a thin woman in black, with gray hair and a worried look. Behind them, on a battered trunk, sat Peter, who was not thin, who wore no worried look, and who chewed gum. Beneath the wagon, invisible at first, trotted a mud-spattered yellow pup. The wagon stopped.

"Good morning, Mrs. Upton," said Mrs. Pillig. "This is me and Peter."

"Where's Buster?" said Peter.

At the word Buster, the yellow pup emerged from beneath the cart, wagging the longest tail, in proportion to the dog, ever seen on a canine. It would be more correct to say that the tail wagged him, for with every excited motion his whole body was undulated to the ears, to counter-balance that tail.

I went out and aided Mrs. Pillig to alight, and then Mike and I lifted the trunk to the porch. I looked at the dog, which had also joined us on the porch, where he was leaving muddy paw marks.

"Do I understand that Buster is also an arrival?" said I.

"Oh, dear me, Mr. Upton, you must excuse me," Mrs. Pillig cried anxiously.

"Mrs. John Barker's boy Leslie gave Buster to Peter a month ago, and of course I sent him right back, but he wouldn't stay back, and yesterday we took him away again, and this morning he just suddenly appeared behind the wagon, and I told Peter he couldn't come, and Peter cried, and Buster wouldn't go back, and I'll make Peter take him away just as soon as the rain stops."

"Well, I hadn't bargained on Buster, that's a fact," said I. I didn't like dogs; most people don't who've never had one. But he was such a thoroughly muddy mongrel pup, and so eloquent of all, that I spoke his name on an impulse, and put out my hand. The great tail wagged him to the ears, and with the friendliest of undulations he was all at once close to me, with his nose in my palm. Then he suddenly sat up on his hind legs, dangled his front paws, looked me square in the eyes, and barked.

That was too much for me. "Peter," said I, "you may keep Buster."

"Golly, I'd had a hard time not to," said that young person, immediately making for the barn, with Buster at his heels.

Mrs. Pillig and I went inside. While she was inspecting the kitchen, Mike and I carried her trunk up the back stairs.

"I hope your bed comes today," said I, returning. "You see, the house is largely furnished from my two rooms at college, and there was hardly enough to go around."

Mrs. Pillig looked into the south room. "Did you have all them books in your two rooms at college?" she asked.

I nodded.

"They must 'a' been pretty big rooms," she said. "Books is awful things to keep dusted."

"Which reminds me," I smiled, leading her over to my desk, at which I pointed impressively. "Woman!" said I, in sepulchral tones, "that desk is never to be dusted, never to be touched."

She looked at me a second with her worried eyes wide open, and then a smile came over her wan, thin face.

"I guess you be n't so terrible as you sound," she said. "But I won't touch it. Anything else I'm not to touch?"

"Yes," I answered. "The ashes in those two fireplaces. The ashes there are never to be taken out, no matter if they are piled a foot thick, and spill all over the floor. A noble pile of ashes is a room's best recommendation. Those are the only two orders I have. In all else, I'm at your mercy. But on those two points you are at mine—and I have no mercy."

"Well, I reckon I'll wash the kitchen windows," said Mrs. Pillig.

I was saying up a few sticks from the orchard when the express man drove up with the beds, the crockery, and so on. I called on Peter, who responded with Buster at his heels.

"Peter," said I, "you ought to be in school, though, by the way. Why aren't you?"

"Red ter bring maw over here," said Peter.

"That's too bad. Aren't you sorry?" Peter grinned at me and slowly winked. I was very stern. "Nevertheless, you'll have a lesson," I said. "You shall tell me the capitals of all the states while we set up your bed."

Peter and I carried the beds, springs and mattresses upstairs and suddenly Buster appeared upon the scene. He began to leave mud tracks all over the freshly-painted floor, so that we had to grab him up and wipe his paws with a rag. Peter held him while I wiped, and we fell to laughing, and forgot Montana.

"You'll have to get rubbers for him," said I.

The idea amused Peter tremendously. "Gee, rubbers on a dog!" he cried. "Buster'd eat 'em off in two seconds. Say, where's Buster goin' to sleep?"

We had to turn aside on our way downstairs for more furniture to make Buster a bed in a box full of excelsior in the shed. We put him in it, and went back to the porch. Buster followed us. We took him back, and put him in the box once more. He whacked the sides with his tail, as if he enjoyed the game—and jumped out as soon as we turned away.

"Gee, he's too wide awake now," said Peter.

So we fell over Buster for the rest of the morning. I never saw a dog before nor since who could so successfully get under your feet as Buster. When I scolded him, he undulated his silly yellow body, sprang upon his hind legs, and licked my hands. If I tried to kick him, he regarded it as a game, and bit my shoe lace. Peter's shoe laces, I noted, were in shreds. But Buster disappeared after a time, and Peter and I got the china and kitchenware all in, and Mrs. Pillig had it washed and in the cupboards before he reappeared. He came down the front stairs with one of my bath slippers in his mouth, and with a profoundly proud undulation of tail and body, laid it at my feet for me to throw, barking loudly. We all laughed, but I took the slipper and beat him with it, while Peter appeared on the verge of tears.

"No, Buster," I cried. "You keep out of doors. Peter, put him out."

Peter resentfully deposited the pup on the porch, and took my slipper back upstairs. Meanwhile, Buster, after looking wistfully through the screen door a second, pushed it open with his nose and paw and re-entered, immediately sitting up on his hind legs and gazing into my eyes with the most human look I ever saw.

"Buster," said I, "you are the limit. Very well, stay in. I give up!"

Buster plopped down on all fours, as if he understood perfectly, and took a bite at my shoe string. I patted his head. I had to. The pup was irresistible.

"And what time will you have your dinner?" asked Mrs. Pillig. "There's no meat in the house. Guess you forgot to order the butcher to stop; but there's eggs."

"Eggs will do," said I, "and one o'clock. Bert has his at twelve, but I want mine at one. Maybe I shall have a guest."

"A guest?" she cried. "You wouldn't be putting a guest on me the first morning?"

"Well, it's doubtful, I'm afraid," I answered. "Perhaps I'll wait till tomorrow night, and have three guests for supper—just Bert and his wife and their boarder—sort of a housewarming, you know. I want you to make a pie."

"Well, I reckon I can wait on table stylish enough for Mrs. Temple," said she, "and I'll make a lemon pie that'll make Bert Temple sorry he didn't marry me."

"I shouldn't want you to wreck Bert's domestic happiness," said I, "but make the pie, just the same!"

I went into the south room, and sat at my desk answering some letters, while I waited for dinner. I could hear the rattle of dishes in the kitchen—the first of those humble domestic sounds which we associate with the word home. Through the house, too, and in to me, floated the aroma of bacon and of coffee, faintly, just detectable, mingled with the smell of earth under June rain, which drifted through an open window. Presently I heard the front door open very softly. As I guessed that Peter had his instructions in behavior from his mother, I knew it must be Miss Goodwin. My pen poised suspended over the paper. I waited for her to enter the room, in a pleasant tingle of expectation. But she did not enter. Several minutes passed, and I got up to investigate, but there was no sign of her. The front door, however, stood ajar. Then Mrs. Pillig called "Dinner!"

I walked into my dining room, and sat down at the table, which was covered with a new tablecloth and adorned with my new china. Beside my plate was the familiar, old-fashioned silver

I had eaten with when a boy, and the sight of it thrilled me. Then I spied the centerpiece—a glass vase bearing three fresh iris buds from the brookside. Here was the secret, then, of the open door! Mrs. Pillig came in with the platter of eggs and bacon, and she, too, spied the flowers.

"Well, well, you've got yourself a booky," she said.

"Not I," was my answer. "They just came. Mrs. Pillig, there's a fairy lives in this house, a nice, thoughtful fairy, who does things like this. If you ever see her, don't be frightened."

Mrs. Pillig looked at me pityingly. "I'll bring your toast and coffee now," she said.

The coffee came in steaming, and it was good coffee, much better than Mrs. Bert's. The eggs were good, too. But best of all was the centerpiece. She had come in so softly, and gone so quickly, and nobody had seen her! She had been present at my first meal in Twin Fires, after all, and so delicately present, just in the subtle fragrance of flowers and the warm token of thoughtfulness! My meal was a very happy one, happier even, perhaps, than it would have been had she sat opposite me in person. "We are curious creatures, who can on occasion extract a sweeter pleasure from our dreams of others in loneliness than from their bodily presence. Mrs. Pillig fluttered in and out to see if I was faring well, and though her service was not that of a trained waitress it sufficed to bring me dessert of some canned peaches, buried under my own rich cream, and to remind me that my wants were so solicitously cared for. Out on the porch I could see Peter playing with Buster and hear that ingratiating pup's yelps of canine delight. Before me stood the purple iris blossoms, with golden hearts just opening, their slender stems rising from the clear water in the vase, and spoke of her whose thought of me was so graceful, so delicately expressed, so warming to my heart. The spoon I held bore my mother's initials, reminding me of my childhood, of that other home which death had broken up ten years before, since when I had called no place home save my study and bedroom high above the college yard. I thought of the yard—pleasantly, but without regrets. I looked through the window as my last spoonful of dessert was eaten, and saw the sky breaking into blue. I folded my new napkin, put it into the old silver ring which bore the word "John" on the side, failed utterly to note the absence of a finger-bowl, and rose from my first meal in Twin Fires.

"I have a home again," said I, aloud. "I have a home again after ten years!" Then I went up the road toward Bert's.

Chintz Covers for Books.

During the summer months, when books are liable to be read out of doors in arbor or hammock, and perhaps left there, it is well to make gay little chintz covers to slip on them. These can be hastily caught together with feather-stitching in a contrasting shade and will add to the appearance of the book as well as serve to protect it.

Only Successful Remedy for Treating Gall Stones

MR. W. C. DILLEHAY

Fruitola and Traxo Brought After Doctor Said Nothing But Operation Would Help.

In the opinion of Mr. W. C. Dillehay, 513 Morton St., Nashville, Tenn., Fruitola and Traxo is the only successful remedy for gall stone trouble. In a letter to the Pinus Laboratories Mr. Dillehay says, "After a leading Nashville physician had failed to relieve my wife, and we were told an operation was necessary, I heard of Fruitola and Traxo and we decided to at least give it a trial. I gave her this medicine as directed and after four doses she was relieved of nearly a quart of gall stones, conclusive evidence that an operation was by no means necessary."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsal formulas at the Pinus Laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased from any doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, discharging the accumulated waste to the sufferer's intense relief. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild the weakened, rundown system.

Notice of General Election

Office of County Clerk, Oct. 26, 1916.

To the Electors of Rock County:

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages, and election precincts in the county of Rock, on the 7th day of November, 1916, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote, in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

- A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and address, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.
- If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.
- A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by marking a cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the party column, or he may vote for the candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for elector for whom he wishes to vote. If a voter does not wish to vote for any one or more candidates for presidential electors in the group he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates and may write in the space provided therefor, the name or names of the person or persons for whom he desires to vote, and the cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) at the head of the party column shall count as a vote for each of the candidates in such column. If a voter does not wish to vote for any candidates for president or vice president or for any presidential electors, whose names appear upon the ballot, he may insert or write in the names of the candidates for president and vice president, and presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be elected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.
- A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.
- The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.
- After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.
- A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability, he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.
- The following is a facsimile of the official ballot.

OCCASION FOR GOOD LAUGH

Contemporary Points Out Opportunities That Are Offered at Dancing Teachers' Convention.

"There is a dancing teachers' convention on up at the Martinique. It ought to make a good josh story." And so it ought. There is probably nothing funnier than teaching dancing, unless it be the domestic troubles of a decent family. They are both essentially josh stories. Heaven knows there is enough sombre stuff in the papers nowadays, without missing a chance to do something funny on a convention of people who teach dancing in their home towns! It makes one laugh just to think of it.

When the next convention comes to town, don't fail to drop in to see it. In the first place, when you go up to the headquarters you will see an aggregation of men and women who are rather more neatly dressed than the average New Yorker. That in itself is comical. Then they will proceed to discuss what they have found to be the prevailing fashion in dancing in their respective fields, and will suggest reforms and improvements. By this time you will have to step outside for a few minutes, you will be laughing so hard.

If you can stand it, you can watch them eat at their convention dinner. The speeches will be good comic relief from the inspiring but serious speeches heard at other banquets, dealing with national honor and preparedness.

In enjoying yourself a lot depends on knowing just where to go to get a good laugh.—New York World.

HAPPINESS IS EVER ELUSIVE

And Never Can Be Found Where One Seeks Only to "Have a Good Time."

Many young people think of little except how they can have a good time. If there is work to do it is only something in their way, to be got rid of as soon as possible, no matter how. They think they can live as a butterfly does when in its glory and sip honey every hour from everything they see.

To find something entertaining, to be amused, is all that they think of. This is very natural, and it is well that they can look on the bright side of life. But they should know also that life is not all a play spell.

There are duties to be performed, and real happiness comes only after work well done. Happiness is not found when sought as the chief thing in life. Entertainments cease to entertain. The brilliant companion does not please always unless there are sterling qualities of character back of the brilliance. Work is the blessing of mankind. Play is relished more after work is done.

There ought to be some earnest purpose, some worthy aim in the heart of everyone. Live not for the present moment. Live to be and do. There are consequences to all our acts. Folly sown brings a bitter harvest which no one can escape reaping. There are innocent joys to which all, especially the young, are entitled. But it should be learned that living to some worthy purpose brings the truest enjoyment.—Milwaukee Journal.

His Remarks.
"I met a man today who knew you intimately in your old home town," stated old Festus Pester.
"Ah! what did he have to say about me?" asked the Hon. Bray Lowder, evidently expecting a compliment.
"I stopped him too soon to learn much. I told him I didn't care to listen to such language."—Kansas City Star.

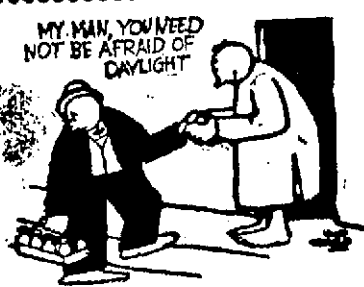

High Standards.
Black—Has Binks ever paid you that ten dollars he borrowed two years ago?
White—No. I offered to call it square for five, but he said he could not lower his business standards by a 50 per cent settlement!

Lost Time.
How mankind defers from day to day the best it can do, and the most beautiful things it can enjoy, without thinking that some day must be the last one, and that lost time is lost eternally.—Max Muller.

Self Denial.
Great is self denial. Life goes all to ravel and tatters where that enters not.—Carlyle.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

MILK MEN
Milkmen prow around at night doing good. They are bashful and would not be caught doing good for anything in the world. They think they are bad. They think they steal milk from unsuspecting cows and put it in bottles and bring it to town and rattle the bottles and swear at their horses and wake everybody up along about four in the morning—but they are not bad—they are GOOD.

Milkmen—YOU ARE GOOD.
You nourish little babies and fatten little children and furnish cream for old ladies' oatmeal.

You can rattle bottles and swear and act bad, but you are good. In fact, you make us wish that some more people would be more sneaking about being good and prow around and act bad about it instead of performing it at high noon.

Some milkmen even put water in their milk to make themselves think they are wicked, but what is wicked about water?

We like people who think they are wicked. The best man we know in the world thinks he is not much.

DUKE OF ORLEANS WILL ASK THE POPE TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

Duke and Duchess of Orleans.

According to authoritative reports, the Duke of Orleans, pretender to the throne of France, is about to apply to the court of Rome for an annulment of his marriage to the Archduchess Marie Dorothea of Austria. The duke contends that the marriage was not concluded on the Austrian side in accordance with all the requirements of ecclesiastical law. The duchess won an action for separation in January, 1914.

At the outbreak of the war the duke in sending back the insignia of the Golden Fleece to the Austrian emperor wrote that the marriage had been the curse of his life.

RESTA'S RECORD, SPEED THRILLER

HERE'S FREAK BET; PAINT TON OF COAL

Dario Resta, the famous, devil-may-care Italian driver who has hogged American auto track records and stuck his fingers into the prize money of every country where they race around tracks in high-powered automobiles, is just taking a breather now.

Resta says he is getting ashamed to go to the money and has promised not to enter "every" event in the future. He's going to skip a few to give the other boys a chance. Resta hurried into the limelight back in 1915 when he hit the high spot. In New York, prior to that he had done a few fancy tricks for the natives in France, Italy and England, but when he came to view of the Statue of Liberty he was well fortified with a bank roll even if he hadn't scattered records on this side.

From Italy Resta started his impetuous way into England and he immediately developed his way to victory in three of England's highest class events. That was a Mercedes, but he forsook his colors to climb a Sunbeam. This had no effect on his neck-breaking speed, for he went right on smashing records and won the Grand Prix at Amberg, just before the present European war broke out. In 1914 he again began to dream of American gold and hid himself back to the shores of the land of plenty, going and winning in New York just a week and then he beat it for San Francisco, where he proceeded to win two events right in succession, the Vanderbilt cup and the strange, something unheard of up to that time.

Then he went to Indianapolis and engaged in one of the fiercest automobile races ever run and forced DuPont, another Italian, to the very limit to win. At Chicago he won the same event and established a new record.

Then they pulled off a challenge race at Chicago and Resta again nailed his colors to the mast.

This year has just been one victory after another, including the big event at Chicago and Indianapolis. In a companionship series of races at Chicago DuPont was beaten in every event by the speedy Italian.

JIM THORPE LEADS PRO PIGSKIN STARS

Jim Thorpe.

Jim Thorpe, one of baseball's interesting figures and former Carlisle All-American halfback, is leading the Canton (O.) professional football team, one of the very strongest professional organizations in the country. The team is composed of ex-college stars, whose names are assumed and every member is a brilliant performer.

Monroe, Wis., Oct. 26.—Freak bets are always recorded during presidential election years, but none reported so far this year surpass in freakishness that of E. D. Miller and A. M. Smith, two prominent business men of Stockton, Ill.

Mr. Miller is a firm supporter of the present administration and the other day when he dropped into the business place of Mr. Smith, he expressed himself in language most forcible. Mr. Smith is as firm a believer that there is to be a change of occupants at the White House as his neighbor believes there will be no more 4th moving.

Both believe the wagering of money is wrong, but they agreed to back their judgment by a wager which will require the loser of the bet to purchase a ton of anthracite coal, have the same delivered in the window of the winner's place of business, then take his seat there and while away each of the hours. The winner of the bet will become the owner of the white coal under the terms of the wager.

TONIGHT.

Walnuts vs. Hickorynuts.

Butternuts, Pecans and Peanuts, thrown together after the fashion of the assorted sacks you'll buy at Christmas time grace second berth in the Nut League race. The berth is pretty well crowded and somebody will have to move shortly. By reason of their defeating the Butternuts in two of the three games rolled the Peanuts dropped in alongside the Pecans as did the Butternuts, their first position with the Hickorynuts having been broken. Tonight the Walnuts meet the Hickorynuts and if the latter don't increase the lead several points they will miss success.

Following are the scores of last night's games:

Peanuts	Ave.	Games

This is the open season for claiming titles. Here is Johnny Ertle, wearing his paper crown and announcing to all the world that he is bantamweight champion. Pat Moore, Kid Williams and a few others say all they need to knock the crown into a cocked hat is for Ertle to venture within striking distance in a roped arena. Al McCoy, by reason of his defeat of George Chip, has a technical claim to his title of middleweight champion, but the experts are almost unanimously and quite firmly of the opinion that he is a "joke" champ who won a "duke" victory, and that any one of several middleweights could floor him easily in a twenty-round go.

PLAN HOME-COMING FOR CHICAGO GAME

Wisconsin Alumni Will Gather for Tomorrow and Saturday to Enjoy Festivities.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—Plans are being made by the Homecoming committee of the University of Wisconsin for the handling of one of the largest crowds which have ever attended the annual return of the former students. According to the reports of the athletic department the ticket sale is far in excess of that of any previous year. The fact that Chicago will be the opponent of the Badgers on Saturday means that many more will attend the game than if Minnesota or Illinois were the main attraction.

Chairman John Mitchell has arranged a program of events which will keep the old grads busy during their stay here. Beginning Friday evening with a monster mass meeting at the gymnasium at which the prominent men in the school and the old grads will speak, a carefully formed program will be carried on until Sunday afternoon when the festivities close with a band concert by the university band at Camp Randall. During the past three days a tag sale has been carried on by the members of the fraternities to raise money to defray the expenses of the event. Prizes have been offered by the Homecoming committee for the best decorated fraternity or sorority house while the committee themselves will take care of the street decorations and the work to be done at the football field. Despite the unfavorable weather the work is progressing at a rapid rate and everything will be in readiness to welcome the former students and their friends.

Coch Witherington will make no statement in regard to the outcome of the game but the general opinion of the student body is that the game will be very close with the Badgers winning by a close margin. Poor weather this week has somewhat handicapped the coaches in the carrying on of the practice for the game.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

These surly are dark and dreary days for the National league ("established 1878"), and correspondingly bright and sunny for the luster which was fighting for existence only a comparatively few seasons ago. When Boston's Red Sox wound up the world's series of 1916 in five games and copped the pennant it was the eight time the American league has won out in thirteen world championship contests.

The pendulum indicative of supremacy, which used to gravitate pretty regular to one side or the other for brief periods, not only refused to swing back to the National league, as it should by rotation of seasons, but seemed inclined to go still further over toward the opposite extreme.

The American league never made a better showing in post-season contests than it did this fall, and the National league never had poorer picking. In three series between major league rivals this autumn the American league not only won all the titles but copped twelve out of fourteen games played. Boston defeated Brooklyn in four out of five.

NAVY CAPTAIN HOPES TO WIN FROM ARMY

Capt. C. O. Ward.

C. O. Ward, captain of the Navy's football team this fall, tells everyone that his boys are going to beat the Army sure this year after several seasons of defeat. The Navy boys have a hard schedule this fall, but the team looks stronger than for several seasons past.

The St. Louis Nationals won only one out of five games from the American leaguers of the Mound City, and Chicago's title series went to the White Sox in four straight.

It looks like Bill Carrigan's retirement is an actual fact and that Jack Barry has been selected to wear his mariale. Barry, like the man he succeeds, served his baseball apprenticeship at Holy Cross college and it might be mentioned her in passing that even on trial teams Barry and Carrigan always were chums. Leaving college in 1908 Barry joined the Athletics and was Connie Mack's star shortstop until sold to the Red Sox in July of 1915 as part of Mack's plan to build a new team entirely. Barry was put at second base by Carrigan and has been even a greater star there than he was at short for Mack. Barry will be thirty years of age next April. He is a New Englander bred and born and makes his home at Worcester, Mass. He has a fine home in that city and is regarded as one of the town's wealthy men—he has shared in six world's series pots, remember, to say nothing of drawing a fat salary for nine years.

Ernie Shore is an exception to the rule that "first impressions always are lasting." His first real appearance as a major leaguer created the impression that he was an awful diver—that he never would do as a major leaguer. When Shore first came from the "brushes" he was given a chance to display his wares. The enemy promptly proceeded to lace him for something like ten runs in one inning. Shore was as wild as an African lion and on those rare occasions when he did get the ball over the plate, it promptly was belted to the distant confines of the ball park. Yet that same Ernie Shore assisted in pitching the Red Sox to a world's championship in 1915 and also in 1916. Once he looked like the worst pitcher that ever got into the majors. Now he ranks as one of the very best. And he is improving right along.

Detroit Americans may go to San Francisco as part of their training trip next spring. Coast league directors are expected to rescind the resolution barring major league clubs.

Ty Cobb may not lead the American this year, but he appears to be batting pretty well in the Paterally league.

Some Operation. "How much of an operation did the doctor perform on you?" "Oh, a couple of thousand dollars' worth."—Life.

Copyright Hart Schaffner & Marx

Our fall campaign is on

Here is information about our candidates

THE Hart Schaffner & Marx styles are here for fall. The famous Varsity Fifty Five suits show a more marked waistline; the buttons on the coat front are placed higher; lapels are a trifle shorter; new ideas in waistcoats.

The belt-back variations of Varsity Fifty Five will interest dressy young men; smarter features than you ever saw before.

Older men who like conservative clothes are amply provided for; suits show no decided innovations; fabrics dark blues, grays, browns.

This season hard-to-fit men will have a "picnic" our sizes, patterns, and models were never more complete.

The overcoat hit of the season is Varsity Six Hundred; a trifle body tracing; in rich new fabrics—fall weight.

"Shelter Coats"—ideal fall utility coats made of light weight materials, rainproofed; smart enough for dressy occasions.

The shirts show new and different colorings; splendid values at $1.00 and up.

Hats—for early fall the new soft shapes are the thing; browns, grays, blues, blacks—$3.00 and up.

Plenty of striking neckwear in every conceivable shade—50c and up.

Now come and see the clothes themselves. The prices are low; values, high.

Sixteen times around the earth

Last year Hart Schaffner & Marx had use for 700,000,000 yards of thread—silk thread, of course.

The figure 700,000,000 is too big to grasp; it sounds better to say 400,000 miles. In other words, the silk thread used by the greatest of all clothing manufacturers in one year would make about 70 round trips from New York to Los Angeles, or would extend 16 times around the world.

Another Proof That It Pays to Advertise an Auction in the Gazette

Milton, Wis., Oct. 20, 1916.

The Gazette, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Sirs:—I wish to say that I am well pleased with the results which I have obtained by advertising auction sale in your paper. I certainly got a good crowd by doing so and I also wish to say that I think Mr. W. O. Dooley is the best auctioneer I ever knew. If he can't sell anything no one can. If I should ever have another sale I would certainly get him if possible and I would do most of my advertising in the Gazette.

Yours truly,
HENRY HOLTZ.

ENGINEERING COST OF ROAD BUILDING LOW IN WISCONSIN

State Ranks Second Out of Eleven
Leading Good Roads States in Efficiency of Administration.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—A striking tribute to the efficiency and economy of the Wisconsin state highway department is found in a report just received by the Good Roads Association of Wisconsin, from the United States department of agriculture. This report is just the highway mileage and expenditures for the calendar year 1915. An analysis of the report has been issued by the publicity department of the State Good Roads association. Some interesting facts are set forth therein.

Low Engineering Cost. An analysis of the engineering and administrative costs of the eleven states which spend $3,000,000 or over under the direction of the state highway department, it is found that this cost in the state of Wisconsin is 1.94 per cent, being lower than all the other states except Michigan which is 1.8 per cent. Under the Michigan system, about one-third of the cost of engineering and administrative cost is borne by the counties and towns in the state, while in Wisconsin the highway department administers more economically, that is, the cost of engineering and administration is less than any state in the Union. New York has the next highest cost, at 2.2 per cent, followed by Massachusetts at 2.3 per cent, Pennsylvania at 2.4 per cent, and then follow Maryland, Ohio, 2.5 per cent, and Michigan and Wisconsin at 2.6 per cent. The average cost of engineering and administrative cost of all these states is 2.2 per cent, compared with 1.94 per cent in Wisconsin.

Jump in Road Expenditures. Some other interesting features are developed by the analysis. During the last five years the annual expenditures on road and bridge construction in the United States has increased from $1,000,000,000 to $2,200,000,000, an increase of over 120 per cent. During the same period the annual state aid for road and bridge construction and maintenance has increased from $22,000,000 to $122,000,000, or almost 450 per cent. As the analysis says, it means that efficient road construction is becoming a larger unit in the state and that the government is taking more and more control of highway and bridge building in only eleven states. In 1916 all but four states, Georgia, Indiana, South Carolina and Texas, had some form of a state highway department.

Another striking feature is that in 1914 practically all of the state funds were applied to road construction, not to general state aid. In the past, funds were applied to general state aid, but in 1915, about $6,000,000, or 20 per cent was applied to maintenance.

U. S. Figures Summarized.

State	Total amount spent on road and bridge construction and maintenance, 1915	State aid for road and bridge construction and maintenance, 1915	Engineering and administrative cost, 1915	Percent

EDUCATE VENEZUELAN YOUNGSTERS IN U. S.

Washington, Oct. 26.—One hundred and seven boys from Venezuela now have scholarships to American schools and most of them are already in this country and at their studies. U. S. Minister to Venezuela Preston McGoodwin reported today.

McGoodwin brought about the gift of the scholarships and is spending part of his vacation in this country investigating the success of the plan. He believes it will go far toward improving the understanding between the United States and Venezuela.

Heretofore many of the sons of wealthy Latin-Americans have received their higher education in Germany and French schools. He said: "This is one of the contributing causes for the close commercial relations which those countries have had with South America in the past. The cause of this condition, I began over a year ago to work out a scholarship system, with the assistance of the American consuls in Venezuela. After consultation with 400 American institutions of higher learning, we received scholarship offers from 110 and the Venezuelan government has accepted 10 so far. The recipients of the scholarships are chosen by the minister of public instruction. The son of General Gomez, president-elect of Venezuela, now in his second year at West Point preparatory school at Morgantown, N. J., is the holder of one of them.

Among others, one is in the agricultural college of Iowa university; one studying electrical engineering at Washington university, St. Louis; another taking the same course at Cornell university, Ithaca, Pa., and one at St. John's military academy, Annapolis, Md. Five of the scholarship winners arrived in this country in September.

In addition to the scholarship offer, a number of American schools are planning to receive students from Venezuela each year in commercial and industrial fields. This is for the purpose of teaching them American business and manufacturing methods.

Among the institutions which are doing this work is the College of Business Administration of Boston university, which has placed a number of South American students with exporting and importing firms. Temple university, Philadelphia, Pa., is doing the same thing. Alvin H. Johnson, president of the United Fruit company, works of Philadelphia, has given two apprenticeships to South American students of engineering and it is expected he will later increase this number. Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, has given four such apprenticeships. Five exporting firms in New York have offered apprenticeships.

It is to be hoped that the same plan will be developed for young men from the other South American republics. Every man so educated and trained is sure to go back to his native land a booster for Pan-American trade."

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

HOW AUSTRIA TREATS PRISONERS OF WAR

Vienna, Oct. 26.—In reply to the continuing charges in the Italian press that Italian prisoners of war held by the Austro-Hungarian authorities were badly treated, the following official statement has been issued:

"The housing of prisoners of war in Austria-Hungary complies with all sanitary laws, for which the excellent health of prisoners of war is the best argument."

"The bread furnished prisoners of war is the same issued to Austro-Hungarian soldiers and consumed by the population of Austria-Hungary."

"Handcuffs and tying prisoners are provided for by the service regulations of the imperial and royal army, and are applied to members of this army in a manner undifferentiated to health. In the sense of The Hague convention this punishment may also be applied to prisoners of war. It is as little too much to expect that prisoners of war are to remain unpunished for offenses which soldiers of the army would be punished. The prisoners into which prisoners of war are never thrown, as charged, but led, are sanitary buildings in the prison camps in which, when necessary, the camp guards also members of the camp guard organizations."

"The attack on our medical system is a misrepresentation. The substance referred to is a writer in the plastic of parts is dried milk of the sort used in all army hospitals and similar institutions."

"Concerning the complaints relative to the quantity of food, the statement may be made that the bearable limitations which England's starvation policy has imposed upon the central powers must of necessity be difficult to group under the heading of humanity an arrangement by which hard-working men, troops in the field, women in the purpose of providing greater rations for prisoners of war whose governments act without the slightest regard for international law."

"The attitude of Austro-Hungarian officers towards Italian captured officers has always been proper, that is, personal sympathy is out of the question. It is due to conditions whose discussion Italian publicists might better leave untouched."

"The last inspection of prison camps in which Italians are contained, made by the American ambassador to Austria-Hungary, resulted in a report to the Italian government that the prisoners of war in Austria-Hungary were well cared for in the matter of housing and clothing, and that the food was in quality and quantity such as was procurable in the monarchy under present conditions, but ample to meet the needs of the men."
